NOTES OF THE WEEK.

Mr. Samuel Montagu, M.P., has succeeded in obtaining from the Home Secretary a remarkable reduction in the fees payable for the naturalisation of foreigners domiciled in England. The fee is now reduced to the merely nominal amount of £1. Mr. Montagu would increase the benefit to poor persons by inducing the Board of Deputies or some other body to relieve foreigners from the heavy "agency" charges. A foreigner is almost helpless in complying with the prescribed regulations previous to a certificate of naturalisation being granted, and professional assistance is invariably necessary, the expense of which would now be nearly five times the amount of the fee. It was made manifest in the Stepney Election Petition that many foreigners (in which category Hanoverians must now be classed) domiciled here for years have hitherto been precluded from applying for a certificate of naturalisation by the large amount of the fee. Thanks to Mr. Montagu's action, the fee has been reduced to a merely nominal sum and no doubt some arrangement will be also made to obviate the heavy incidental expenses.

The idea of holding an Exhibition for the purpose of stimulating popular interest in Anglo-Jewish History is taking tangible shape. The important meeting held at the residence of Mr. F. D. Mocatta last Sunday revealed the existence of a wide-spread sympathy with the project which may not improbably grow in many cases into enthusiasm. The idea of holding such an Exhibition is one of those things which take stronger hold on the imagination and win increased favour the more familiar they become. As the scope and purpose of the Exhibition is better comprehended the greater will be the popularity of the movement. Everyone who has treasures to display will be only too glad to show them; and the list of proposed "exhibits" has so wide a range that the number of possible exhibitors must unquestionably be very considerable. Not many, for example, possess ancient manuscripts of historical interest; and deeds relating to the early settlement of the Jews in this country are necessarily in the possession of public bodies only. But the number of persons who have a rare portrait of some bygone Anglo-Jewish worthy, or an old Jewish book or pamphlet, or an interesting specimen of Jewish art-work, such as a piece of embroidery or a Chanuka-lamp, or an etching or painting, is much larger than might be supposed. Indeed, it is not improbable that the managers of the Exhibition may find themselves embarrassed, not by a paucity of material, but its superabundance. It has been wisely determined to hold the Exhibition in some public building. The importance of the show demands for it such a habitat; but, besides this, exhibitors will be assured that their treasures will be well housed and securely guarded.

The promoters of the Exhibition have been equally well advised in associating with themselves some prominent men belonging to other denominations. The objects of the Exhibition are such as to command the sympathetic interest of the Gentile as well as the Jew. It is highly desirable, too, that it should be made clear that the project has been initiated, not in any narrow spirit of vain glory, but with a genuine desire to illustrate more or less obscure points of Anglo-Jewish History, in the elucidation of which our Christian fellow-countrymen must be almost as interested as we are ourselves. In short, what the Committee of the Exhibition aim at is the performance of the truly scientific task of extending and popularizing a knowledge of the career of the Jewish population in this country, a task which may reasonably be regarded as having its importance for Englishmen generally, without distinction of ancestry or creed. The management of the proposed Exhibition has been entrusted to such capable hands, and the spirit in which the project has been undertaken is manifestly so excellent that it is almost superfluous to insist upon the necessity of this broad idea of its character being kept constantly in view. The immediate results of the movement can hardly fail to be successful. But we shall be greatly surprised if it does not produce more far-reaching and lasting effects in kindling a deeper interest in the past of the English Jew, and in increasing the sanctity of the relics which tell some fragment of his story. We hope to see a permanent organisation charged with the preservation of such relics grow out of the Exhibition. A museum, too, for the same purpose might eventually be attached to one of our public institutions—Jews' College for example.

It would appear that Oxford had great attractions for Jews in the resettlement in England. In 1793 a Jewess died there at the age of 105, and a portrait of this interesting centenarian is possessed by her great great grandson, Mr. Barnard Levy, of Liverpool. There are many English Jewish families who trace their descent from Jews having the suffix "of Oxford" to their Hebrew surnames. Yet but few traces of these pioneers remain. We look forward to the formation of an Anglo-Jewish Historical Society that will investigate and preserve such interesting data. Four times a year in all our synagogues the pious memory of a long list of deceased Rabbis is recalled, yet the greater number of their tombs have been allowed to crumble into dust and few of them have their inscriptions intact. To cite another instance, the parochial registers of St. Bennet's, Cornhill, contain several Jewish nam s; an examination of similar records throughout England would possibly result in a rich harvest of historic data. In these and other directions the new Association would find plenty of practical work ready to its hands besides the labours of research by experts and students.

Young as Bulgaria is as an autonomous state, its Prince and Ministers have shown that they are by no means willing to remain in the rear as regards enlightment and toleration. At Samacoff an instance of toleration has lately been officially recorded, which we believe is without parallel even in any country of Western Europe. The inhabitants of Samacoff have received public notification that, in future, civil cases in which Jews may figure either as plaintiffs or as defendants will no longer be heard on Saturdays, so as not to interfere with the due observance of the Jewish Sabbath. This remarkable concession redounds to the credit of the judicial authorities of Samacoff who have set an example of respect for religious susceptibilities which merits imitation elsewhere.

In another column we give details of anti-Jewish disturbances which took place lately at Odessa and Sebastopol. In the first named city there appears to have been no particular cause for the outbreak, but in Sebastopol it arose froma false report that a Christian had been murdered by Jews. The damage in both places was confined to plundering and to the smashing of doors and windows, although in Odessa two Jews and two public functionaries, one of them the Chief of Police, were seriously injured. Unsatisfactory as these disturbances were, they are relieved by one circumstance, and that is the timely intervention of the military and police in the interests of the Jews and of public order. The fact that the head of the police was wounded in defending the attacked Jews is eloquent testimony to the change which has come over the attitude of the Russian authorities in dealing with anti-Jewish excesses. It is evident that the outburst of indignation in 1882 against the terrible outrages then committed with impunity upon the Jews was not made in vain. The Russian Government may, and does, continue to oppress the Jews by means of the law, but it has been brought to recognise the fact that the Jewish subjects of the Czar are human beings, and must, as such, be protected when their lives are in danger.

The death of Zunz has been almost immediately followed by the re-issue of the Statuten der Zunz-Stiftung. Though this institute was founded so far back as 1865, in honour of Zunz's seventieth birthday, little has been heard of it in the interim because its funds were devoted to the use for literary purposes of Dr. Zunz himself. The aims of the institute are very ambitious, but certainly do not exceed what is due to the memory of the great scholar to whom it is intended to do honour. Among its objects are the assistance of research, the publication of high-class periodicals, to place the treasures of the great libraries at the disposal of scholars by finding the pecuniary means for visiting them, in a word, to encourage the scientific criticism of Hebrew Literature which was originated and developed by Zunz. The success of the Institute will be some measure of the permanent value of Zunz's work.

The Rev. A. A. Green in his "Notes on the Hagada," which we recently published, and the several correspondents who took part in the pen and ink discussion which ensued on this subject, cited various editions of the Hagada in support of their arguments. It may interest them to know that Herr Adolf Osten, a Jewish merchant at Xanten-on-the-Rhine, possesses what is undoubtedly a unique collection of the Passover Evening Service. In his library he has no less than 114 different editions of the Hagada which have been published from the beginning of the 16th century to the present day. Even this collection does not represent all the issues of the Hagada which have seen the light during this period.

JEWS' COLLEGE.

The first award of the "Isaac Marsden Memorial Scholarship" was made by the Council of the College at their monthly meeting on Thursday last. The examination took place on May 3rd and 4th. Several candidates from London and the provinces competed, and the subjects of examination included English, Hebrew, French, German, Latin, Greek, and Mathematics. The Report of the Examiners showed that the first place had been gained by Ephraim H. Cotton, of King Edward's School, Birmingham, and to him the Council awarded the Scholarship, which in addition to a Free Pupilship, is of the value of twenty-five pounds per annum, and tenable for two years. To other candidates who were honourably mentioned, the Council awarded Free Pupilships, namely, to S. Levy, Newcastle-on-Tyne, J. Rosenbaum, Jews' Hospital and Orphan Asylum, and Israel Melcher, Cardiff.

The Recent Bulgarian War.—On the return to Shumla of the soldiers who had taken part in the war a gratifying episode took place. The pupils of the boys' and girls' school of the Alliance joined the authorities in welcoming the patriots, and each child held in its hand a small Bulgarian flag, ornamented with flowers. When the Commander of the troops passed the School one of the scholars approached, and in handing the officer a bouquet, congratulated him in the name of the Jews on the happy issue of the war.

Leipsic.—The famous Leipziger Messe (Great Market) is usually attended by a large number of Jewish merchants. On the 7th of this month many of these visitors were expelled from the city owing to their inability to produce their papers of naturalisation.

Greece.—Signor Giuseppe Racamulli, a learned Jewish publisher of Corfu, has translated into modern Greek (in which he is as well versed as in Italian, his native language) the "Ethics of the Fathers." He has published the translation, which is preceded by the Hebrew text, and has dedicated the work to the Prince Royal of Greece. The Prince graciously accepted the dedication in a very cordial and appreciative letter which he addressed to Signor Racamulli.

City of London School.—Henry James Eder has obtained a Beaufoy Shakespeare prize in this School.

Steinway Hall.—Miss Cowen gave a successful Recital on Tuesday, the 11th, the most important item in the programme being a new Comedietta by Re Henry, entitled "A Pretty Equal Match." The piece, the characters in which were represented by Miss Cowen and Mr. Eric Lewis, is sparkling and vivacious, and was received with much applause. Miss Cowen concluded her series of Recitals on Tuesday evening, when she had the assistance as vocalist of Miss Ellen Haas.

THE CONDENSED STORY OF A GREAT SENSATION.

A large city in Mongolia, at a great distance from the Wall of China, contained a population of respectable Mahomedans and a numerous section of influential Buddhists. It never occurred that the Buddhists worshipped in any place that was not dedicated to their incarnate divinity, nor was it held to be compatible with Mahomedan precepts that a follower of Islam should carry his prayer carpet to the shrine of Buddha. One day, however, a well-known Mahomedan betook himself into a Buddhist Temple, in which, according to common usage, there was placed a praying machine for the benefit of those worshippers who exhibit to Buddha a panorama of devotional pictures or a display of written prayers. The apparatus on which these auxiliaries to public worship are fixed have to be turned by means of a wheel, and it happened that the Mahomedan visitor volunteered to assist in the turning of this wheel.

When this public act of the Mahomedan became known, it gave rise to a remarkable diversity of comments. Party No. 1 gleefully declared that the time had arrived for the settlement of all religious differences and for the proclamation of religious peace, as though the differences and the desired peace could be established without a concrete foundation. Party No. 2 cried out that a public deviation from existing rules must be resented by the infliction of a public punishment, as though it had ever been possible to strengthen the force of religion by the help of vindictive sentiments. Party No. 3 would go a step further, and declared that no support should be given to any institution that had been favoured by the unpopular hero of the present story. This demand would undoubtedly meet with the approval of close-fisted Mahomedans, who are always ready to become partisans of any doctrine which enjoined the withholding of free-will gifts.

Now it so happened that in the unnamed city there was an establishment for tending the aged, the sick, the orphan and many others who were smitten with divers afflictions. The upshot of the discordant sentiments and actions was a prevailing apprehension that a mighty disruption would take place amongst the promoters of charitable works. The most judicious and most benevolent people of the town took, however, an entirely different view of the way in which public business should be conducted.

The critical point of the present story has now been reached, and the dénouement of the social drama remains to be told. It will be told at a future time.

BOARD OF GUARDIANS.

The monthly meeting of the Jewish Board of Guardians was held on Monday at the offices of the Board, Devonshire Square. There were present: Mr. LIONEL L. COHEN, M.P., President, in the Chair; Dr. M. Davis, Messrs. H. A. Abrahams, M. Bamberger, D. Benjamin, M. Boas, C. S. Davis, Barrow Emanuel, L. A. Isaacs, L. Jacob, F. D. Mocatta, Charles Samuel, Stuart M. Samuel, S. Simons, A. E. Sydney.

A report was brought up from the Industrial Committee on the letter from the organisers of "The East London Apprenticing Fund," asking the Board to send Delegates to act with the Committee of that Fund. As already mentioned by us, the Committee decided to recommend to the Board that no useful purpose would be served by accepting the invitation of the Apprenticing Fund.

The Report was adopted, the Board, however, expressing its willingness to afford any information which it might be in its power to give to the East London Committee.

Messrs. L. L. Alexander and Algernon E. Sydney were appointed a Sub-Committee to administer the Funds (which may be employed in several ways) under the "Nathan Simson Trust."

A letter was read from Mr. M. Angel, Head Master of the Jews' Free School, calling attention to the existence of a Cheder kept by a Mr. Simon Cohen in Church Lane, and suggesting that the Board should make representations to the School Board, informing the authorities that an uncertified school had been established which was attended by children for whom there was ample room in certified schools.

Mr. A. E. SYDNEY and Mr. F. D. MOCATTA were of opinion that it was beyond the scope of the Board to carry out Mr. Angel's suggestion.

Mr. BARROW EMANUEL thought that a reply might be sent to Mr. Angel to the effect that whilst the Board was not prepared to write to the London School Board with reference to any particular Cheder, it was willing to complain of the existence generally of such inadequate schoolrooms, and of the harm which they did to the intellectual and physical growth of children.

A resolution in the sense suggested by Mr. Emanuel was carried unanimously.

The Treasurer's report was submitted, showing available assets amounting to £1,571, against £620 at the same period last year.

Several cases of a private nature were brought to the notice of the meeting, which terminated with a vote of thanks to the Chair.

BRIGHTON.—At a General Meeting of the members of the Brighton Congregation the following were elected honorary officers for the ensuing year: President and Representative at Board of Deputies, Mr. Lewis Lewis; Treasurer, Mr. W. Davis; Auditors, Messrs. Harris Lewis and J. L. Davis; Committee: Messrs. J. H. Cohen, Jacob Cohen, I. Da Costa, S. Cook, B. Isaacs, J. Jones, Jules Lewy, Hyam Lewis, Lewis Lyons, S. Solomons, W. Springer, J. Szapira.

WOLVERHAMPTON.—At the Annual General Meeting held on Sunday last, Messrs. H. Zusman and D. Timpowski were re-elected President and Treasurer for the ensuing year, and Messrs. L. Benjamin J. Harris, S. Kronson, Z. Rudelsheim, and M. Barnett, members of the Committee. Mrs. Jonas Gordon, of Connaught Road, has kindly presented to the synagogue two handsome mantles for Scrolls of the Law.

MANCHESTER.—A movement has been started for the purpose of forming classes for teaching the elements of the English language to foreign Jews, of whom there are a large number in Manchester. An influential and representative meeting of gentlemen interested was held at the Great Synagogue Chambers on Sunday last, by invitation of the Rev. H. Levin, Mr. Max Hesse in the Chair, when it was unanimously resolved: "That an association be formed for the elementary education in English of Foreign Jews."—Mr. Philip Falk has been unanimously re-elected to represent the Great Synagogue at the Board of Deputies.

WHITECHAPEL PUBLIC SWIMMING BATHS.—On Tuesday last the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs opened the public swimming baths in Goulston Street, Whitechapel. Amongst those present at the ceremony were the Rev. Dr. H. Adler, Mr. S. Montagu, M.P., Messrs. Morris Abrahams and John Harris, C.C., two of the commissioners, Mr. Abraham Levy, Head Master of the Old Castle Street Board School, and a large number of the Jewish inhabitants of the district. Mr. John Harris, C.C., moved a vote of thanks to Mr. F. D. Mocatta, one of the principal promoters of the baths, who with the Rev. S. A. Barnett, had collected £1,000 towards their erection. Votes of thanks were passed to the commissioners, and (on the motion of Mr. Morris Abrahams) to the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs. The public baths have been an inestimable boon to the Jewish inhabitants of the overcrowded district. During the week immediately preceding Passover, 2,500 tickets were issued to Jews.

THE PROPOSED JEWISH EXHIBITION.

A meeting to promote the holding of an Anglo-Jewish Historical Exhibition was held at the residence of Mr. F. D. Mocatta, on Sunday last. There were present: Mr. F. D. MOCATTA, in the Chair; the Revs. Dr. H. Adler, Morris Joseph, and A. Löwy; Dr. Asher, Dr. Friedländer, Major Goldsmid; Messrs. Alfred L. Cohen, Israel Davis, Lewis Emanuel, Ellis A. Franklin, Joseph Jacobs, S. L. Lee, Philip Magnus, Hyman Montagu, S. Montagu, M.P., Asher I. Myers, Alfred Newman, James H. Picciotto, I. Spielman, and Lucien Wolf.

The Rev. Dr. HERMANN ADLER called attention to interesting relics such as Moses' Hall, or the stone synagogue at Bury, which dates from before the expulsion, and the Rev. A. Löwy spoke of works written by English Jews which are preserved in the Vatican. Mr. Lewis Emanuel suggested that the aid of country archæological associations and of the town clerks should be invoked.

It was resolved that an Exhibition be held in some public building in London in the Spring of 1887, with the following objects: To promote a knowledge of Anglo-Jewish History; to create a deeper interest in records and relics bearing thereon, and to aid in their preservation; to help to determine the extent of the materials which exist for the compilation of a history of the Jews in England. The following provisional list of the objects admissible for exhibition was adopted:

CLASS I.

A. Relics and Records (or Photographs and Descriptions of them) of the Expulsion and Pre-Expulsion Periods.
B. Title-deeds of Earliest Land and Property holders; Charters and Shtaroth.

E. Letters and Autographs of Distinguished Persons.

With such other objects as the Executive Committee may think proper to admit.

A General Committee and an Executive Committee were elected, Mr. F. D. Mocatta and Mr. J. N. Castello being chosen the President and Treasurer respectively, and the Rev. Morris Joseph and Mr. Isidore Spielman the Honorary Secretaries, of the Exhibition. It was resolved that a guarantee-fund be raised, and that steps be taken by advertisement and otherwise to announce the intention of holding the Exhibition, and to invite "exhibits." It was arranged that the cost of carriage and insurance of objects accepted for exhibition should be defrayed from the funds of the Exhibition.

A keen interest in the movement was manifested by the meeting, and present indications unquestionably point to a successful realisation of the project.

NATIONAL HEALTH SOCIETY.—In the last Annual Report of the National Health Society, the following reference is made to the zealous services of Mrs. N. Defries in spreading a knowledge of hygienic principles among women: Mrs. Defries, whose special subject is the Prevention of the Spread of Infectious Disease, has given fourteen lectures at mothers' meetings for the Society. She has founded a Working Women's Health Association in connection with the Society, of which many of her audience became members. The women promise to abide by certain rules and regulations given them on a printed paper by Mrs. Defries, with the names and addresses of the District Medical Officer of Health and Sanitary Inspector, to whom they are urged to apply in cases of insanitary conditions in their houses.

POOR JEWS' TEMPORARY SHELTER.—A meeting of the General Committee of the Poor Jews' Temporary Shelter was held on Sunday last, at the premises, 84, Leman Street, Mr. Ellis A. Franklin, President, in the Chair. The Executive Committee reported that it was intended to inaugurate a system of giving meals to destitute Jews, on the presentation of a ticket, which would be purchasable by subscribers to the Shelter. A deputation of the Committee of the Sabbath Meals Society attended and an arrangement was entered into, that the Shelter should give three meals per day on Sabbath and festivals at the rate of 6d. per meal, the Sabbath Meals Society giving previous notice of the number to be provided for, and also paying for six inmates of the Shelter. The meeting considered the best means of making the Shelter known to destitute foreign Jews.

INQUEST.—On Saturday last Mr. George Collier held an inquiry at the Weaver's Arms, Baker's Row, Whitechapel, as to the death of a foreign Jew unknown. On Thursday afternoon, the 13th, Thomas Rose, 172 H, found the deceased sitting on the pavement in the Whitechapel Road, perfectly insensible, and evidently suffering from destitution. He at once called a cab and took the man to the infirmary, where he was received in a terribly dirty and destitute condition, and died next day. The post-mortem examination revealed the fact that he must long have been suffering from neglect, exposure, and want of food, the actual cause of death being disease of the lungs, induced by his mode of life. The doctor assumed the man to be between 60 and 70 years of age, but he looked so ill and starved that the police deemed him to be over 80. A verdict of "Death from destitution" was recorded. It appears that the name of the deceased was Jacob Tobe, that he had children and other relatives and was unknown to the officers of the Jewish Board of Guardians. We are told that his death was due rather to long-standing disease than to actual destitution, but as the disease itself was traced at the inquest to want, this information hardly affects the case.

DISTURBANCE IN THEATRES.—The elocutionary ability of the actor often loses much of its force through the incessant and unsubdued coughings of the audience. Instant relief is always given by the old cough remedy, Powell's Balsam of Aniseed. Sold by Chemists everywhere. In bottles 1s. 1½d. or 2s. 9d. Trade Mark, "Lion, Net, and Mouse." Warehouse, 4, Albion Place, Blackfriars Bridge London, S.E. No household should be without this invaluable cough medicine.—JADVT.]

THE ROYAL ACADEMY.

[SECOND NOTICE].

There is no lack of studies of Venetian life, artists apparently considering Venice and the Venetians a perennial source of interest to the public. Such, no doubt, is the fact to a certain extent, but when the same scenes, and frequently the same models, appear year after year, a sense of satiety becomes inevitable. Miss Ellen Montalba has discovered a new model in "A Venetian Girl" (534), and has treated her theme in a novel manner by making the whole coloration of the picture subordinate to the red hair of her subject. The girl stands by the side of a well, upon the ledge of which rests one of those copper water vessels so characteristic of Italy. The elaboration of the pinks and carnations of this sparkling picture is eminently successful. The same girl also appears as an occupant of "A Bourano Boat" (836), in Miss Hilda Montalba's silvery picture with that title. The boat, containing two women, is being rowed by a boatman across the Adriatic to Venice from the neighbouring town of Bourano. It is a solidly painted, luminous work, and certainly the best Miss Hilda Montalba has exhibited this year. Mr. E. B. Stanley Montefiore is not seen to the best advantage in "True to the tryst" (255), a lady in cavalier costume on horseback, the colour being cold and thin. The drawing of the horse is capital, as is usual with Mr. Montefiore's work, and it would be well if he confined himself to animal subjects pure and simple, as he is capable of much better work than this. A more satisfactory picture is the quaint "An old bachelor" (804), by Mr. Carl Schloesser. There is an old-fashioned air, which accords well with his surroundings, about the ancient gentleman who has just finished his cup of chocolate and is standing warming himself before the fire. The textures are well rendered, and the execution is searching and true. Equally good is Mr. Solomon J. Solomon's portrait "Miss Teresa Mayer" (256) which presents a bold study of a lady in a white ball-dress. The mass of white lends brilliancy to the picture, and the flesh tints gain by contrast, but an awkward pose detracts from its complete success. "Katie, daughter of George Lewis, Esq." (11), by Mrs. C. E. Perugini, is a somewhat stiff representation of a bright-eyed little maiden, engaged in knitting, whilst Mr. Percy Bigland's "Mrs. Carl Meyer" (504) has but little to recommend it. Miss Julia Levy sends "Carnation design" (913), Mr. Alfred Elias "The little milk carrier: Normandy" (436), "Cows returning home" (567), and Miss Emma Magnus "Will't please my lady" (581). Amongst the etchings we remark Mr. L. B. Phillips's "Castle and bridge of Sant' Angelo, Rome" (1438), which suffers from want of tone in some parts, owing to not having been left sufficiently long in the bath; the water and reflections are, however, cleverly managed, and, taken as a whole, the etching is a successful one.

Mr. Charles Turrell sends miniatures of "Mrs. Leopold de Rothschild" (1358), a beautiful portrait, but with the drapery slovenly painted; "Lady Sybil Primrose" (1359), badly posed, nevertheless good; and "Lady Peggie Primrose" (1360), which is charming. In the Architectural Drawings Department is a design for "Beaston Lodge, Cheshire" (1652), by Messrs. Salamons and Ely of Manchester, which is able; and a "First design for the People's Palace at the East End" (1683), by Mr. E. R. Robson, will be noticed with interest.

There are more works by our coreligionists in the rooms allotted to sculpture than we remember to have ever seen before. Remarkable amongst them is Miss Henrietta Montalba's decidedly clever "A Dalecarlian peasant woman, province of Sweden" (1897), a bust of a woman in the national costume, executed with considerable abandon and power. This costume must necessarily lose much of its picturesqueness owing to the medium in which it is wrought being incapable of reproducing those beautiful combinations of colour which are the delight of the Dalecarlian peasant; the correctness is, however, undeniable. Miss Louisa Jacobs contributes a bright bust, "Childhood" (1846), ably modelled, but the leaves which surround it savour of affectation. By the same artist is a plaster bust, "A reverie" (1917), a woman thinking, a common place rendering of a trite subject. A bronze head, quite classical in treatment, by Mr. G. B. Amendola, and called "Felicita, a peasant girl from Cava di Tirreni" (1871), attracts attention by its exceptional originality, and will tend to enhance the reputation of the modeller. Miss Evelyn J. Goldsmid's "Girl's Head" (1899) is a too stolid rendering of a pleasing young girl. Miss Ella Casella sends "A lady—wax medallion" (1883), and Miss Nelia Casella "Lady with a lute" (1884) and "Portrait of a gentleman" (1885), both coloured wax medallions, the originals of which will be recognised by those who are acquainted with the Austrian colony of our coreligionists. They are quaint specimens of an almost lost art, and as such will commend themselves to those who admire such survivals. The well-known figure of "Alderman Sir Benjamin Phillips" (1782), is the subject of a carefully wrought marble bust by Mr. Walter Merrett. It has been presented, according to the inscription it bears, to the Corporation of the City of London by the Inhabitants of the Ward of Farringdon Within, and is full of expression and life. In the next room is a full-length statuette of "Augustus Harris, Esq." (1796), in evening dress, with a loose overcoat. It can hardly be deemed a good portrait, and appears more like a peer in his robes than the enterprising lessee of a popular theatre.

There are hardly as many Scriptural subjects as usual. Taking them in their order, Mr. Philip H. Calderon, R.A.'s sympathetic treatment of the incident of "Ruth and Naomi" (21) first attracts attention. The painting of the group of Ruth and Naomi is one of the most beautiful pieces of work in the Academy, excellent in tone and faultless in drawing. The figures are both conventionally treated, but Mr. Calderon has attempted without adequate knowledge to place the action of the scene in the East. Not only does the unduly pink background bear evident signs of not having been painted in loco, but a prominent position is accorded to a species of Opuntia, or prickly pear, which at that time could not yet have been introduced from South America. This is, however, perhaps hyper-criticism, as the masterly manner in which the entreating attitude of Ruth and the tender regard of Naomi are rendered, quite atones for any shortcomings. Mr. Long, R.A., should be regarded as a benefactor by our manufacturers, inasmuch as he has suggested in his "Pharoah's daughter" (115) a new substitute for the traditional Noah's Ark of childhood. Anything more wooden than this work is impossible to conceive. Pharoah's daughter, surrounded by her attendants, is standing at the bottom of a flight of steps on the banks of the river, and has given a finger, totally out of drawing, to a fair child in a basket to play with. Anatomy there is none, the drapery is stiff, a straight line does duty for the leg of an attendant, and the sole redeeming feature is the painting of the water-plants in an almost unnoticed corner. Great learning and thought are manifest in every portion of Mr. G. F. Watts, R.A.'s "The death of Cain" (158). The grotesqueness which characterises the attitude of Cain is lost sight of when attention is paid to the careful painting of the details, more especially to his skin, tanned, as it is, as if he had lived for centuries. The angel of death is passing behind him, and near by a withered tree, with but one branch in leaf, lends suggestiveness to the allegory. The mode of Cain's death as here represented is nevertheless not consonant with that accredited to him by tradition. "The story of Cain" (272) also supplies Mr. George McCulloch with his subject who, however, treats it too melodramatically to be taken seriously. A painful rendering of "Hagar and Ishmael" (623) in the desert does credit to Mr. W. H. Margetson's inventive powers. The accessories are good, and Hagar is well painted, but the drawing of the boy is weak. Amongst the sculpture is "Cain—an outcast," the subject of groups by Messrs. Frederick W. Pomeroy, Arthur G. Walker, and W. Reynolds Stephen, probably owing to this subject having been selected for competition in the school of the Royal Academy. They are well-conceived, and do justice to their modellers, and we much regret that our space does not permit us to consider them more in detail.

SPANISH AND PORTUGUESE SYNAGOGUE.

A meeting of the Yehidim of the Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue was held on Wednesday at the Vestry Room, Bevis Marks. Mr. JOSEPH DE CASTRO was voted to the Chair.

The meeting was convened, in the first instance, to confirm a resolution of Mr. Joshua M. Levy (passed at the previous meeting on the 9th inst.), relating to the term during which Parnassim and Gabay shall hold office, the date of election, the mode of nomination by the Mahamad and Yehidim, and such other alterations in existing Ascamot as may be needed in order to give effect to the resolution.

Mr. J. M. LEVY asked permission to make certain modifications in his resolution. After some remarks by Messrs. J. Montefiore, S. Sebag, D. Benqliel, I. Pariente, D. A. Romain and A. Benato, the resolution in its original form, with the addition, of a new clause, was confirmed nem. con.

Mr. A. BENABO then moved: That a Committee of the Yehidim attendants of the Bevis Marks Synagogue, together with the gentlemen of the Mahamad, be appointed to inquire into the attendance, and also the mode of conducting the Service, and to bring up a report and recommendation thereon.

In support of the motion, Mr. BENABO urged that if anything could be done to render the services more attractive thereby conducing to larger attendances (although he did not concede that the Synagogue was by any means deserted on Sabbaths) it was desirable to appoint the desired Committee of Inquiry.

Mr. I. PARIENTE seconded the motion.

Mr. ABRAHAM MOCATTA, as a member of the Mahamad, said that if a reasonable number of Yehidim attending the Bevis Marks Synagogue expressed themselves anxious to consider the subject, he would be prepared to meet them.

The motion was carried, and the following gentlemen were appointed as the Committee of Inquiry: The five gentlemen of the Mahamad, and Messrs. A. Benabo, A. Calo, A. A. Romain, D. A. Romain, M. L. Yuly.

The meeting terminated with a vote of thanks to the Chair.

MANCHESTER JEWS' SCHOOL.

The following is the Report of the Government Inspector upon his recent examination of the Manchester Jews' School:

BOYS.—This large and important school well maintains its high reputation of previous years. The boys were in very good order and passed a highly satisfactory examination both in the Elementary and Class subjects. In the specific subjects also Algebra was very good and French fairly good. Singing by note was very good indeed. There has been a very considerable increase in the attendance, the average for the past year being 525 against 451 in the previous year. There is also an increase of 60 in the number presented for examination.

GIRLS.—The girls were in excellent order and passed a remarkably good examination. The elementary work throughout was of a very superior character with the exception of the Arithmetic in the higher standards which was only fair. The errors in spelling averaged less than one per head and over 75 per cent of all the sums were worked correctly. In the class subjects English was very good, in Recitation and, upon the whole, good in Grammar. Needlework was very good indeed. The fourth and six Standards were inferior to the rest in Grammar. Singing by note was very good. The school has gained very considerably during the past year. Compared with the previous year there is an increase of 57 both in the average attendance and in the number of girls presented for examination.

INFANTS.—This school has made a decided advance during the past year in all respects. The average attendance shows an increase of 12 upon that of the previous year, and the attainments have also improved. The children have been very well instructed in elementary subjects. The object lessons have been effective and some Kindergarten work and other occupation have been practised with much advantage. Needlework has been well taught and singing by note was good. The order was excellent. The managers should take care to keep average attendance within the limit allowed by Article 96 (a) of the code at 8 square ft per scholar. The boys' school has exceeded that limit during the past year.

THE BEAUMONT TRUST.—On Tuesday last a meeting of the East London Committee of the Beaumont Trust was held in the Court Room of the East and West India Dock House, Billiter Street. Mr. Lewis Levy presided, and among those present were Messrs. J. Berlyn, H. Gluckstein, J. Harris, C.C., Stephen S. Hyam, Abraham Levy (Honorary Secretary), J. Morley, A. H. Vallentine, and M. Van Thal. A Sub-Committee, including Messrs. J. Harris, C.C., A. Levy, and L. Levy was formed to make arrangements for the reception of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales and H.R.H. the Princess of Wales, who will lay the foundation stone of the institution on Monday, June 28th. Reports were read of the local and sub-committes, and it was resolved to make an appeal to the working classes of the East End.

MARRIAGE PORTION SOCIETY.—A meeting of the Marriage Portion Society was held on Tuesday last, Mr. L. M. Myers, President, in the Chair. The Committee have issued an appeal for an increase in the funds of this useful and unobstrusive Charity, which has been the means of enabling a large number of young couples honourably to commence wedded life.

CONCERTS FOR THE POOR.—Mrs. Nathan Defries gave the weekly entertainment on Wednesday evening, at the Jews' Free School. Mrs. Albert Samuel, Miss Shorrock and Mr. Harold Savery were the vocalists; Miss Florence Phillips was the pianiste; and Miss E. V. Defries, violinist. A novel and amusing feature of the entertainment was a representation of "Mrs. Jarley's Waxworks," in which the following took part: Misses Buchheim, Defries, E. V. Defries, Halford, Hyam, Jacob E. Jacob, Lee, Lindo, M. Lindo, Macleod, Mallet, G. Mallet, Mocatta; and Messrs. Ayer, Halford, Hyam, Jacob, Lee, Lindo, Kalisch, Levinsohn, Mocatta, Myers, C. and M. Myers. The final concert of the present season will be given on Wednesday next by Miss Pauline Lowenstark.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—Safely and Securely. When the severities of winter have yielded to the genial spring, invalids should make a determined effort to regain their lost health, when through confinement indoors, want of appetite, and disturbed sleep, the entire system has been weakened, and the spirits have been broken down, Holloway's remedies are equal to the occasion. The Ointment rubbed over the region of the stomach and liver, aided by the internal administration of his Pills, will rectify the digestion, regulate the bile, and purify the blood, three sanatory actions which will speedily confer renewed vigour, brace up the failing nerves, confirm the flaccid muscles, and restore to the ailing cheerfulness, that charm of existence.—[ADVT.]

Asthma, Consumption, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds, Shortness of Breath, Phlegm, Pains in the Chest, Rheumatism, Dr. LOCOCK'S PULMONIC WAFERS give instant ease and a rapid cure. To singers and public speakers they are invaluable for clearing and strengthening the voice, and taste pleasantly. Sold at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. per box. Sold by all medicine vendors.—[ADVT.]

THE CONDENSED STORY OF A GREAT SENSATION.

A large city in Mongolia, at a great distance from the Wall of China, contained a population of respectable Mahomedans and a numerous section of influential Buddhists. It never occurred that the Buddhists worshipped in any place that was not dedicated to their incarnate divinity, nor was it held to be compatible with Mahomedan precepts that a follower of Islam should carry his prayer carpet to the shrine of Buddha. One day, however, a well-known Mahomedan betook himself into a Buddhist Temple, in which, according to common usage, there was placed a praying machine for the benefit of those worshippers who exhibit to Buddha a panorama of devotional pictures or a display of written prayers. The apparatus on which these auxiliaries to public worship are fixed have to be turned by means of a wheel, and it happened that the Mahomedan visitor volunteered to assist in the turning of this wheel.

When this public act of the Mahomedan became known, it gave rise to a remarkable diversity of comments. Party No. 1 gleefully declared that the time had arrived for the settlement of all religious differences and for the proclamation of religious peace, as though the differences and the desired peace could be established without a concrete foundation. Party No. 2 cried out that a public deviation from existing rules must be resented by the infliction of a public punishment, as though it had ever been possible to strengthen the force of religion by the help of vindictive sentiments. Party No. 3 would go a step further, and declared that no support should be given to any institution that had been favoured by the unpopular hero of the present story. This demand would undoubtedly meet with the approval of close-fisted Mahomedans, who are always ready to become partisans of any doctrine which enjoined the withholding of free-will gifts.

Now it so happened that in the unnamed city there was an establishment for tending the aged, the sick, the orphan and many others who were smitten with divers afflictions. The upshot of the discordant sentiments and actions was a prevailing apprehension that a mighty disruption would take place amongst the promoters of charitable works. The most judicious and most benevolent people of the town took, however, an entirely different view of the way in which public business should be conducted.

The critical point of the present story has now been reached, and the denouement of the social drama remains to be told. It will be told at a future time.

BOARD OF GUARDIANS.

The monthly meeting of the Jewish Board of Guardians was held on Monday at the offices of the Board, Devonshire Square. There were present: Mr. LIONEL L. COHEN, M.P., President, in the Chair; Dr. M. Davis, Messrs. H. A. Abrahams, M. Bamberger, D. Benjamin, M. Boas, C. S. Davis, Barrow Emanuel, L. A. Isaacs, L. Jacob, F. D. Mocatta, Charles Samuel, Stuart M. Samuel, S. Simons, A. E. Sydney.

A report was brought up from the Industrial Committee on the letter from the organisers of "The East London Apprenticing Fund," asking the Board to send Delegates to act with the Committee of that Fund. As already mentioned by us, the Committee decided to recommend to the Board that no useful purpose would be served by accepting the invitation of the Apprenticing Fund.

The Report was adopted, the Board, however, expressing its willingness to afford any information which it might be in its power to give to the East London Committee.

Messrs. L. L. Alexander and Algernon E. Sydney were appointed a Sub-Committee to administer the Funds (which may be employed in several ways) under the "Nathan Simson Trust."

A letter was read from Mr. M. Angel, Head Master of the Jews' Free School, calling attention to the existence of a Cheder kept by a Mr. Simon Ochea in Church Lane, and suggesting that the Board should make representations to the School Board, informing the authorities that an uncertified school had been established which was attended by children for whom there was ample room in certified schools.

Mr. A. E. SYDNEY and Mr. F. D. MOCATTA were of opinion that it was beyond the scope of the Board to carry out Mr. Angel's suggestion.

Mr. BARROW EMANUEL thought that a reply might be sent to Mr. Angel to the effect that whilst the Board was not prepared to write to the London School Board with reference to any particular Cheder, it was willing to complain of the existence generally of such inadequate schoolrooms, and of the harm which they did to the intellectual and physical growth of children.

A resolution in the sense suggested by Mr. Emanuel was carried unanimously.

The Treasurer's report was submitted, showing available assets amounting to £1,571, against £620 at the same period last year.

Several cases of a private nature were brought to the notice of the meeting, which terminated with a vote of thanks to the Chair.

BRIGHTON.—At a General Meeting of the members of the Brighton Congregation the following were elected honorary officers for the ensuing year: President and Representative at Board of Deputies, Mr. Lewis Lewis; Treasurer, Mr. W. Davis; Auditors, Messrs. Harris Lewis and J. L. Davis; Committee: Messrs. J. H. Cohen, Jacob Cohen, I. Da Costa, S. Cook, B. Isaacs, J. Jones, Jules Lewy, Hyam Lewis, Lewis Lyons, S. Solomons, W. Springer, J. Szapira.

WOLVERHAMPTON.—At the Annual General Meeting held on Sunday last, Messrs. H. Zusman and D. Timpowski were re-elected President and Treasurer for the ensuing year, and Messrs. L. Benjamin J. Harris, S. Kronson, Z. Rudelsheim, and M. Barnett, members of the Committee. Mrs. Jonas Gordon, of Connaught Road, has kindly presented to the synagogue two handsome mantles for Scrolls of the Law.

MANCHESTER.—A movement has been started for the purpose of forming classes for teaching the elements of the English language to foreign Jews, of whom there are a large number in Manchester. An influential and representative meeting of gentlemen interested was held at the Great Synagogue Chambers on Sunday last, by invitation of the Rev. H. Levin, Mr. Max Hesse in the Chair, when it was unanimously resolved: "That an association be formed for the elementary education in English of Foreign Jews."—Mr. Philip Falk has been unanimously re-elected to represent the Great Synagogue at the Board of Deputies.

WHITECHAPEL PUBLIC SWIMMING BATHS.—On Tuesday last the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs opened the public swimming baths in Goulston Street, Whitechapel. Amongst those present at the ceremony were the Rev. Dr. H. Adler, Mr. S. Montagu, M.P., Messrs. Morris Abrahams and John Harris, C.C., two of the commissioners, Mr. Abraham Levy, Head Master of the Old Castle Street Board School, and a large number of the Jewish inhabitants of the district. Mr. John Harris, C.C., moved a vote of thanks to Mr. F. D. Mocatta, one of the principal promoters of the baths, who with the Rev. S. A. Barnett, had collected £1,000 towards their erection. Votes of thanks were passed to the commissioners, and (on the motion of Mr. Morris Abrahams) to the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs. The public baths have been an inestimable boon to the Jewish inhabitants of the overcrowded district. During the week immediately preceding Passover, 2,500 tickets were issued to Jews.

THE PROPOSED JEWISH EXHIBITION.

A meeting to promote the holding of an Anglo-Jewish Historical Exhibition was held at the residence of Mr. F. D. Mocatta, on Sunday last. There were present: Mr. F. D. MOCATTA, in the Chair; the Revs. Dr. H. Adler, Morris Joseph, and A. Löwy; Dr. Asher, Dr. Friedländer, Major Goldsmid; Messrs. Alfred L. Cohen, Israel Davis, Lewis Emanuel, Ellis A. Franklin, Joseph Jacobs, S. L. Lee, Philip Magnus, Hyman Montagu, S. Montagu, M.P., Asher I. Myers, Alfred Newman, James H. Picciotto, I. Spielman, and Lucien Wolf.

The Rev. Dr. HERMANN ADLER called attention to interesting relics such as Moses' Hall, or the stone synagogue at Bury, which dates from before the expulsion, and the Rev. A. Löwy spoke of works written by English Jews which are preserved in the Vatican. Mr. Lewis Emanuel suggested that the aid of country archæological associations and of the town clerks should be invoked.

It was resolved that an Exhibition be held in some public building in London in the Spring of 1887, with the following objects: To promote a knowledge of Anglo-Jewish History; to create a deeper interest in records and relics bearing thereon, and to aid in their preservation; to help to determine the extent of the materials which exist for the compilation of a history of the Jews in England. The following provisional list of the objects admissible for exhibition was adopted:

THE ROYAL ACADEMY.

There is no lack of studies of Venetian life, artists apparently considering Venice and the Venetians a perennial source of interest to the public. Such, no doubt, is the fact to a certain extent, but when the same scenes, and frequently the same models, appear year after year, a sense of satiety becomes inevitable. Miss Ellen Montalba has discovered a new model in "A Venetian Girl" (534), and has treated her theme in a novel manner by making the whole coloration of the picture subordinate to the red hair of her subject. The girl stands by the side of a well, upon the ledge of which rests one of those copper water vessels so characteristic of Italy. The elaboration of the pinks and carnations of this sparkling picture is eminently successful. The same girl also appears as an occupant of "A Bourano Boat" (836), in Miss Hilda Montalba's silvery picture with that title. The boat, containing two women, is being rowed by a boatman across the Adriatic to Venice from the neighbouring town of Bourano. It is a solidly painted, luminous work, and certainly the best Miss Hilda Montalba has exhibited this year. Mr. E. B. Stanley Montefiore is not seen to the best advantage in "True to the tryst" (255), a lady in cavalier costume on horseback, the colour being cold and thin. The drawing of the horse is capital, as is usual with Mr. Montefiore's work, and it would be well if he confined himself to animal subjects pure and simple, as he is capable of much better work than this. A more satisfactory picture is the quaint "An old bachelor" (894), by Mr. Carl Schloesser. There is an old-fashioned air, which accords well with his surroundings, about the ancient gentleman who has just finished his cup of chocolate and is standing warming himself before the fire. The textures are well rendered, and the execution is searching and true. Equally good is Mr. Solomon J. Solomon's portrait "Miss Teresa Mayer" (256) which presents a bold study of a lady in a white ball-dress. The mass of white lends brilliancy to the picture, and the flesh tints gain by contrast, but an awkward pose detracts from its complete success. "Katie, daughter of George Lewis, Esq." (11), by Mrs. C. E. Perugini, is a somewhat stiff representation of a bright-eyed little maiden, engaged in knitting, whilst Mr. Percy Bigland's "Mrs. Carl Meyer" (504) has but little to recommend it. Miss Julia Levy sends "Carnation design" (913), Mr. Alfred Elias "The little milk carrier: Normandy" (436), "Cows returning home" (567), and Miss Emma Magnus "Will't please my lady" (581). Amongst the etchings we remark Mr. L. B. Phillips's "Castle and bridge of Sant' Angelo, Rome" (1138), which suffers from want of tone in some parts, owing to not having been left sufficiently long in the bath; the water and reflections are, however, cleverly managed, and, taken as a whole, the etching is a successful one.

Mr. Charles Turrell sends miniatures of "Mrs. Leopold de Rothschild" (1358), a beautiful portrait, but with the drapery slovenly painted; "Lady Sybil Primrose" (1359), badly posed, nevertheless good; and "Lady Peggie Primrose" (1360), which is charming. In the Architectural Drawings Department is a [illegible] Lodge, Cheshire" (1652), by Messrs. The g[illegible] tude of Cain is lost sight of when attention is pai[illegible] details, more especially to his skin, tanned, as it is, as if he had [illegible] turies. The angel of death is passing behind him, and near by a withered tree, with but one branch in leaf, lends suggestiveness to the allegory. The mode of Cain's death as here represented is nevertheless not consonant with that accredited to him by tradition. "The story of Cain" (272) also supplies Mr. George McCulloch with his subject who, however, treats it too melodramatically to be taken seriously. A painful rendering of "Hagar and Ishmael" (623) in the desert does credit to Mr. W. H. Margetson's inventive powers. The accessories are good, and Hagar is well painted, but the drawing of the boy is weak. Amongst the sculpture is "Cain—an outcast," the subject of groups by Messrs. Frederick W. Pomeroy, Arthur G. Walker, and W. Reynolds Stephen, probably owing to this subject having been selected for competition in the school of the Royal Academy. They are well-conceived, and do justice to their modellers, and we much regret that our space does not permit us to consider them more in detail.

SPANISH AND PORTUGUESE SYNAGOGUE.

A meeting of the Yehidim of the Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue was held on Wednesday at the Vestry Room, Bevis Marks. Mr. JOSEPH DE CASTRO was voted to the Chair.

The meeting was convened, in the first instance, to confirm a resolution of Mr. Joshua M. Levy (passed at the previous meeting on the 9th inst.), relating to the term during which Parnassim and Gabay shall hold office, the date of election, the mode of nomination by the Mahamad and Yehidim, and such other alterations in existing Ascamot as may be needed in order to give effect to the resolution.

Mr. J. M. LEVY asked permission to make certain modifications in his resolution. After some remarks by Messrs. J. Montefiore, S. Sebag, D. Benoliel, I. Pariente, D. A. Romain and A. Berato, the resolution in its original form, with the addition, of a new clause, was confirmed nem con.

Mr. A. BENABO then moved: That a Committee of the Yehidim attendants of the Bevis Marks Synagogue, together with the gentlemen of the Mahamad, be appointed to inquire into the attendance, and also the mode of conducting the Service, and to bring up a report and recommendation thereon.

In support of the motion, Mr. BENABO urged that if anything could be done to render the services more attractive thereby conducing to larger attendances (although he did not concede that the Synagogue was by any means deserted on Sabbaths) it was desirable to appoint the desired Committee of Inquiry.

Mr. I. PARIENTE seconded the motion.

Mr. ABRAHAM MOCATTA, as a member of the Mahamad, said that if a reasonable number of Yehidim attending the Bevis Marks Synagogue expressed themselves anxious to consider the subject, he would be prepared to meet them.

The motion was carried, and the following gentlemen were appointed as the Committee of Inquiry: The five gentlemen of the Mahamad, and Messrs. A. Benabo, A. Calo, A. A. Romain, D. A. Romain, M. L. Yuly.

The meeting terminated with a vote of thanks to the Chair.

HIGH-CLASS EDUCATIONAL HOME-SCHOOLS FOR GIRLS

Conducted by

MEMBERS of KING'S COLLEGE, the PROFESSORS of the ROYAL ACADEMY, &c.

These Schools are established to offer to the daughters of the Upper Classes an education corresponding to that which boys enjoy at Eton and Harrow, and to afford them at the same time the refinement and social surroundings of their own homes. The services of the most eminent Professors of the day have been retained to superintend and direct the studies of the pupils in class, thus affording to parents the opportunity (until now disregarded) of giving to their daughters an education similar in all respects to that which their sons enjoy.

Houses have been chosen in suitable localities, the numbers of the girls in each being limited to twelve. Pupils will be prepared for the Higher and the Local Oxford and Cambridge Examinations, the College of Preceptors Examination, etc., according to their capabilities. Special facilities will be given to those desiring to proceed to Girton and Newnham.

The Tuition Staff comprises Lecturers and Professors attending regularly, English Governesses to give constant supervision and resident foreign teachers to enable the pupils to gain that knowledge of foreign languages which can only be acquired by con- Children from abroad will be able to remain during holidays.

whole tendency of the times.

Viewed in the light thrown upon them by such a suggestive event as the election of representatives of the Berkeley Street Synagogue at the Board of Deputies, the Manchester dispute has almost a ludicrous aspect. While men are squabbling about the propriety of allowing a "Reform" minister to officiate in an orthodox place of worship, the ground has been cut away under their feet, and the last bar to the complete union of the two sections of the community which have been estranged, actually or ostensibly, for the last forty years, has been finally removed. The Board of Deputies has always been the embodiment of respect for Rabbinical authority. Only those congregations could claim to have a voice in its councils which acknowledged the ecclesiastical authority of the CHIEF RABBI. Now that fundamental principle is set aside. The Board imposes no longer any ecclesiastical test upon its would-be constituents. It sees clearly that the time has gone by for the perpetuation of the semblance of a schism which has been killed and buried by public opinion long ago. No more striking proof of the reality of the union which has replaced the dissensions and animosity of a bygone generation could possibly be found than the election of representatives of the Berkeley Street Synagogue at the Board of Deputies. The change of attitude is not confined to one side. The Board of Deputies has shown that it has been able at last to recognise undoubted facts, and to accommodate its policy to them. But the West London Synagogue has exhibited a like insight and adaptability. If the "Reform" Congregation has been as immovable hitherto as the Board, the honour of striking out a new and a better path must be equally distributed between both.

Why should the relations between the synagogues of the two sections be the only discordant note in this gratifying harmony? Why should the House of GOD—the place consecrated as much to brotherly love as to the worship of Heaven—alone keep alive, as though they were hallowed, the memories of quarrels which are dead, and which we have all agreed to forget as quickly as possible? Can anyone formulate a logical reason why differences which are declared to exist no longer should be proclaimed by the Synagogue to be in as full vigour as ever? Or is it possible to explain in intelligible language a state of things which admits of the Berkeley Street Congregation sending deputies to the Board, and yet prevents them from admitting orthodox ministers into their pulpit? Is there any reason why Dr. HERMANN ADLER should not preach in Upper Berkeley Street and Professor MARKS in Bayswater? Only those who would attempt the task of accounting for the anomaly must not fail to take ccount existing facts. It will not do to say that the Delegate CHIEF and Professor MARKS represent two opposite principles in Judaism Rabbinical and the non-Rabbinical, and that therefore, they cannot tently officiate in the same synagogue; for the fact remains that the two opposing principles are represented at the Board of Deputies. If ecular organisation can find room for them, why should not the Syna- e be equally capacious? Shall it be less wide than Judaism in which er section, Orthodox or "Reform," will dream of denying the other a ?

True, there is the excommunication difficulty. But we are all agreed in thinking the Cherem of forty years ago an unfortunate blunder, to nothing of the fact that, as the late Professor THEODORES showed, there these days, even from the Rabbinical point of view, no such thing exist- as the power to excommunicate. Even supposing the power did still st, where is the man who would wish it exercised as against the Berkeley eet Congregation, or, indeed, against any body of Jewish schismatics? have not stood still during the last forty years. We have moved on and ve moved nearer to each other. Communal dissension to-day is a sham. ere is no such thing. We have our differences of opinion on religious tters, but we do not quarrel and call each other bad names on that count. We agree to differ. The widest divergence of opinion prevails even the same congregations; but it does not prevent them from worshipping gether under the same roof. Some of us keep the two-day Festival, others lebrate only one day. Some read the whole Prayer Book, others skip the iyutim. But the same synagogue holds us. No calamity has happened us far. Union in the synagogue has done us no harm. Why should its tension harm us? Professor MARKS has already preached in an orthodox nagogue without the roof falling in, and he may preach in Bayswater ithout any such untoward accident being anticipated. Dr. HERMANN ADLER, o, may be welcomed at the Berkeley Street Synagogue without a qualm he beautiful fabric will suffer not the slightest injury; the religious ideas f the worshippers will be equally safe against shock. The time is ripe for uch an interchange of amenities and for such a formal consecration of the nion of English Jews. Which side will earn the distinction of being the irst to move?

NATURALISATION FEES.

In our issue of the 16th ult. we published the text of a Memorial presented by Mr. Samuel Montagu, M.P., to the Home Secretary, praying that the fees payable for the grant of a Certificate of Naturalisation might be reduced from £5 to £1. The following is a copy of a letter received by Mr. Montagu, from which it will be observed that the Home Secretary has acceded to the prayer of the Memorial:

Whitehall, 17th May, 1886.

Sir,—With reference to your letter of the 2nd inst., and to previous correspondence, I am directed by the Secretary of State to inform you that with the consent of the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, he has prescribed that the fee to be taken for the grant of a certificate, whether of naturalisation or of re-admission to British nationality, and for registering the same, together with the Oath of Allegiance, shall be reduced to £1.

HIGH-CLASS EDUCATIONAL HOME-SCHOOLS FOR GIRLS

Conducted by

MEMBERS of KING'S COLLEGE, the PROFESSORS of the ROYAL ACADEMY, &c.

These Schools are established to offer to the daughters of the Upper Classes an education corresponding to that which boys enjoy at Eton and Harrow, and to afford them at the same time the refinement and social surroundings of their own homes. The services of the most eminent Professors of the day have been retained to superintend and direct the studies of the pupils in class, thus affording to parents the opportunity (until now disregarded) of giving to their daughters an education similar in all respects to that which their sons enjoy.

Houses have been chosen in suitable localities, the numbers of the girls in each being limited to twelve. Pupils will be prepared for the Higher and the Local Oxford and Cambridge Examinations, the College of Preceptors Examination, etc., according to their capabilities. Special facilities will be given to those desiring to proceed to Girton and Newnham.

The Tuition Staff comprises Lecturers and Professors attending regularly, English Governesses to give constant supervision and resident foreign teachers to enable the pupils to gain that knowledge of foreign languages which can only be acquired by constant association. Children from abroad, will be able to remain during holidays.

Hebrew will be included in the Syllabus for Jewish students presenting themselves for examination.

For Terms, Names of Reference, Prospectus, List of Professors, &c., apply to MRS. LOUIS SIMMONS, 21, LADBROKE GARDENS, BAYSWATER, who has started the first of the series of Home Schools.

COMMUNAL UNION.

AN incident which derives is importance solely from its being unprecedented in the congregation in which it has occurred, has given rise to a somewhat animated discussion in our columns of late. The Minister of the Manchester Congregation of British Jews recently assisted in solemnising a marriage in the Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue in that city with the consent of the Executive of the latter place of worship. Such an event had never occurred before in the Manchester Sephardic Synagogue, and a correspondent wrote to protest against the innovation on the ground that it was a violation of the principle of conforming in religious and ecclesiastical matters to the practice of the parent congregation in London on which the synagogue was originally established. Strictly speaking, no doubt, the protest was just. But the question is whether the time has not come when a little disregard of such principles is justifiable in the interests of religion itself. The relations between the orthodox and the "reform" sections of the community have unquestionably undergone a salutary change within the last few years. Is the attitude towards each other of the synagogues of both sections to continue unchanged in the face of that fact? The Manchester Portuguese Congregation is bound by its charter, written or unwritten, to be guided by the parent congregation in religious matters. But what if the latter determine to keep up the semblance of estrangement between it and the "Reform" congregations for the next fifty years? Will the Manchester Synagogue still consider itself bound from a respect for mere formalities to cling to a policy which stands clearly condemned by current facts and by the whole tendency of the times?

Viewed in the light thrown upon them by such a suggestive event as the election of representatives of the Berkeley Street Synagogue at the Board of Deputies, the Manchester dispute has almost a ludicrous aspect. While men are squabbling about the propriety of allowing a "Reform" minister to officiate in an orthodox place of worship, the ground has been cut away under their feet, and the last bar to the complete union of the two sections of the community which have been estranged, actually or ostensibly, for the last forty years, has been finally removed. The Board of Deputies has always been the embodiment of respect for Rabbinical authority. Only those congregations could claim to have a voice in its councils which acknowledged the ecclesiastical authority of the CHIEF RABBI. Now that fundamental principle is set aside. The Board imposes no longer any ecclesiastical test upon its would-be constituents. It sees clearly that the time has gone by for the perpetuation of the semblance of a schism which has been killed and buried by public opinion long ago. No more striking proof of the reality of the union which has replaced the dissensions and animosity of a bygone generation could possibly be found than the election of representatives of the Berkeley Street Synagogue at the Board of Deputies. The change of attitude is not confined to one side. The Board of Deputies has shown that it has been able at last to recognise undoubted facts, and to accommodate its policy to them. But the West London Synagogue has exhibited a like insight and adaptability. If the "Reform" Congregation has been as immovable hitherto as the Board, the honour of striking out a new and a better path must be equally distributed between both.

Why should the relations between the synagogues of the two sections be the only discordant note in this gratifying harmony? Why should the House of GOD—the place consecrated as much to brotherly love as to the worship of Heaven—alone keep alive, as though they were hallowed, the memories of quarrels which are dead, and which we have all agreed to forget as quickly as possible? Can anyone formulate a logical reason why differences which are declared to exist no longer should be proclaimed by the Synagogue to be in as full vigour as ever? Or is it possible to explain in intelligible language a state of things which admits of the Berkeley Street Congregation sending deputies to the Board, and yet prevents them from admitting orthodox ministers into their pulpit? Is there any reason why Dr. HERMANN ADLER should not preach in Upper Berkeley Street and Professor MARKS in Bayswater? Only those who would attempt the task of accounting for the anomaly must not fail to take into account existing facts. It will not do to say that the Delegate CHIEF RABBI and Professor MARKS represent two opposite principles in Judaism—the Rabbinical and the non-Rabbinical, and that therefore, they cannot consistently officiate in the same synagogue; for the fact remains that the same two opposing principles are represented at the Board of Deputies. If the secular organisation can find room for them, why should not the Synagogue be equally capacious? Shall it be less wide than Judaism in which neither section, Orthodox or "Reform," will dream of denying the other a place?

True, there is the excommunication difficulty. But we are all agreed now in thinking the Cherem of forty years ago an unfortunate blunder, to say nothing of the fact that, as the late Professor THEODORES showed, there is in these days, even from the Rabbinical point of view, no such thing existing as the power to excommunicate. Even supposing the power did still exist, where is the man who would wish it exercised as against the Berkeley Street Congregation, or, indeed, against any body of Jewish schismatics? We have not stood still during the last forty years. We have moved on and have moved nearer to each other. Communal dissension to-day is a sham. There is no such thing. We have our differences of opinion on religious matters, but we do not quarrel and call each other bad names on that account. We agree to differ. The widest divergence of opinion prevails even in the same congregations; but it does not prevent them from worshipping together under the same roof. Some of us keep the two-day Festival, others celebrate only one day. Some read the whole Prayer Book, others skip the Piyutim. But the same synagogue holds us. No calamity has happened thus far. Union in the synagogue has done us no harm. Why should its extension harm us? Professor MARKS has already preached in an orthodox synagogue without the roof falling in, and he may preach in Bayswater without any such untoward accident being anticipated. Dr. HERMANN ADLER, too, may be welcomed at the Berkeley Street Synagogue without a qualm. The beautiful fabric will suffer not the slightest injury; the religious ideas of the worshippers will be equally safe against shock. The time is ripe for such an interchange of amenities and for such a formal consecration of the union of English Jews. Which side will earn the distinction of being the first to move?

NATURALISATION FEES.

The following is a copy of a letter received by Mr. Montagu, from which it will be observed that the Home Secretary has acceded to the prayer of the Memorial:

JOSEPHUS AGAINST APION.

BY THE REV. S. SINGER.

A PAPER READ AT JEWS' COLLEGE LITERARY SOCIETY, MAY 9TH, 1886.

[CONCLUSION.]

The first thirteen chapters of the 2nd book deal directly with Apion, his method of writing history, his attacks upon the Alexandrian Jews, and upon Jewish customs and institutions. And here we are admitted to witness some fine sword-play. Josephus says he has observed that although people take a certain pleasure in listening to slander, they are not averse to seeing the slanderer himself exposed on account of his vices. He then enters into a minute refutation of every disparaging statement, and of many a crass error of Apion's—a specimen of the latter being the grammarian's derivation of "Sabbath" from an Egyptian word meaning "swelling" or "inflammation," because the Jews had to rest on the seventh day to recover from the effects of their journey. (!) Apion's eagerness to prove the Jews an Egyptian people is owing to the fact that he was himself an Egyptian, as distinguished from a true Alexandrian; and, being ashamed of his origin, he liked to fix the reproach he dreaded upon others. The right of the Jews to be considered true Alexandrians had been disputed—a sort of anticipation of a not very profound query of a modern public teacher, "Can Jews be patriots?"—but Josephus triumphantly settles that point in favour of his brethren. The original Greek text, from the 3rd section of the 5th to the 2nd of the 9th chapter is lost, and Josephus's words are only preserved in a Latin translation of these passages. He answers the charges brought against the Jews of worshipping different gods from those of their fellow-citizens; of inciting to seditious outbursts; of refusing to set up the statues of the Emperor in their synagogues; of worshipping the head of an ass, and of fattening a Greek every year and then devouring him. (This is the germ probably of that diabolical accusation which has since been levelled so often and with such terrible results against a race, than whom none are imbued with a more profound reverence for human life). He also disposes of the various reproaches, that Jews vowed hatred to every foreigner, that they merited their many misfortunes in consequence of the badness of their laws, and that they had produced no great men, no philosophers and inventors of the arts. Their mode of offering and their abstinence from swine's flesh, as well as other observances, are next explained and justified. In the final chapters Josephus enters upon a full exposition of the legal and ethical principles that underlie the whole Jewish system. It is undoubtedly the most delightful portion of the book, and might serve as a complete manual of Jewish morals. Here we have demonstrated to us how perfect is the union in Judaism of law and justice, of learning and piety, of morality and religion; how far-reaching and all-embracing are its lessons of mercy and loving kindness. A fine sense of proportion seems to have guided him in the choice and arrangement of his material. Every point tells. His attitude is that of a man conscious of a right cause, proud of those noble truths of which his nation have been made the depositories, resolved to show that Judaism is a religion which, seen in the light of day, will by its own brightness and purity confound and put to shame all that are incensed against it.

It will be seen from this brief and most imperfect survey how vast is the ground covered by this work. There is material in it not for one but for many lectures, nay, for whole treatises on such subjects, for instance, as the references in classical writers to Jews and Judaism; the theory of the Hyksos and of the nation of lepers; the chronology of Josephus, and the canon of his scriptures—which numbered not like ours 24, but 22 books; the ancient Jewish methods of preserving family pedigrees; the connection of Jews with and their influence upon the neighbouring populations; Josephus's views concerning the Jewish state, marriage, the parental and filial relations, education, prayer, and the whole field of Jewish ethics. Those who are curious on these subjects will find all the material they can desire, and more probably than they can employ in two books, written to show the breadth and depth of Josephus's knowledge, but which bear also a similar testimony as to their own authors. They are, "Des Flavius Josephus Schrift gegen den Apion, Text und Erklärung aus dem Nachlass von J. G. Müller," and "Ueber das hohe Alter des Jüdischen Volkes gegen Apion, nach hebräischen Originalquellen erläutert von Dr. M. Zipser."

It would be useless for me to attempt even a cursory sketch of any of these subjects. There are two points, however, suggested by this most interesting work, upon which I should like to say a few words. The one is a matter of archæological interest; the other unfortunately is not.

Apion had repeated the curious old libel that the Jews worshipped in their Temple an ass's head. Josephus contrives to get not a little sport out of the accusation, and more than hints that Apion's knowledge of the subject is due to his instinctive recognition of one of his own species. What gave this fable its long life and secured its widespread acceptance, it would be difficult to say. The well-known caricature of Jewish history in the 5th book of Tacitus takes up the story thus: The Jews, driven forth from Egypt, lay stretched upon the plains, ready to perish, when a herd of wild asses, returning from pasture, went up a rock shaded by a grove. The herbage that grew upon the ground led Moses to expect water underneath, and he accordingly found copious streams there. Out of gratitude to the animal through whose guidance they were able to slake their thirst and terminate their wanderings, they consecrated the figure of an ass in their Temple! With what carelessness or animus history has been written may be inferred from the fact that in the very next chapter Tacitus, contrasting the Egyptians with the Jews, says that while the former worship various animals and images, the latter acknowledge one God only, and conceive of Him by the mind alone, and consequently allow no resemblance of Him in their cities, much less in their Temples.

A similar story is hinted at in one of the Symposia of Plutarch (iv. 5, 6), although the same author elsewhere (de Iside et Osiride) declares that divine honours were paid to the ass because Typhon, the spirit of evil and uncleanness fled from a battle on an ass for seven days, and afterwards begat two sons, Hierosolyma and Judæus, and that his grateful children thereupon deified the beast that had saved their father. Both Tacitus and Plutarch, however, had been preceded by Apion and he by Diodorus Siculus who died in the year 13 of the Christian era. With the last-named the story ran that Antiochus Epiphanes had reported that he had entered the Holy of Holies and found there an image in stone of a man with a long beard, standing upon an ass, and holding a book in his hand. This man he concluded was Moses, the founder of the Jewish people. (For much valuable information on the classical conceptions of Judaism see Frankel's Monatsschrift for the years 1856, 1860, and 1872).

Grätz (Monatsschrift 1872, p. 194) regards the story told by Antiochus as the source of all the later myths and gives a very ingenious explanation of its origin. In the 2nd Temple, in the place where the ark and cherubim formerly were, there was a stone called אבן שתיה. This was what Antiochus saw. The stone rested probably on a support, such a netherstone or support is called in Greek ὄνος, which also means an ass. All that time Antiochus was a novice at the work of sacrilege, and the awe which every Greek or Roman felt upon entering a Temple had not yet worn off. He may well have fancied more than he saw, and related how he had seen a stone shaped like a human being resting ἐπ' ὄνου. Possibly also a Scroll of the Law may have been deposited there. The story, of course, underwent changes in the course of conveyance; but when other features varied or vanished, the ass was tough enough to survive in his integrity.

Some have sought for an explanation of this extraordinary myth in certain innocent words of Genesis (xxxvi. 24): "These are the children of Zibeon, both Ajah and Anah; this was the Anah who found the mules in the wilderness when he fed the asses of Zibeon his father." Others led by Duncker (Geschichte des Alterthums I. 199) consider that as the ass was the beast of the Evil God Typhon, and Typhon was regarded especially as a God of the Hyksos and of the Syrian and Arabic races related to them, the chief of the unclean ones would be conceived as riding on the beast of the Evil God. Perhaps the history of Balaam's ass, and the legends that attached themselves to the ass upon which the Messiah was to ride (Zech, ix. 9) became mixed up with the rest, and commended themselves to minds that were ready to snatch at any bits of gossip and travellers' tales that came in their way, and that by their very indefiniteness gave room for the exercise of the narrator's ingenuity or imagination. That a story like this should meet with general credence may indeed surprise us; but we need not be more astonished at that than some future generation will be on learning that 18 centuries after Israel's dispersion—in the age of steamboats and railways, telegraphs and electric light, newspapers and compulsory education—there should still be people who believe that the Jews have an invincible passion for the blood of Christian children, and prefer it, above all things, as a flavour for their unleavened bread.

The second point is one more directly affecting us. One of those calumnies which have lived a long and baneful life, and have not everywhere expired even in our time, is that Jews regard the rest of mankind as their natural enemies. Apion went so far as to assert that Jews used to take an oath to bear no good will to any stranger, especially not to a Greek. Josephus's refutation of this libel is written in a manly, unequivocal strain, and places the humanitarian side of the Jewish law above suspicion. "It is worthy of notice how our Lawgiver provided that justice should be done to the stranger. It is clear that he has taken the greatest precaution that we should neither destroy our own constitution nor show an envious mind towards those who would cultivate a friendship with us. As many as come to us and wish to live under the same laws as ourselves are received in a friendly spirit; for he held that kinship consists not merely in the bond of race, but in the manner of our life. Other things also he wrote which must be mentioned. To all such as want it, fire, water, and food must be given, and the road must be shown" (in this passage the author may have had in his mind the very lines already quoted from Juvenal, who was a contemporary of his); "none were to lie unburied. Even against enemies our conduct should be equitable." That all this is in perfect accordance with the spirit of Mosaism it is superfluous to prove, at least to those who remember the oft-repeated Pentateuchal injunctions to have one law for the native and for the stranger, not to vex the stranger, not to oppress him, to love the stranger, not to hate even an Egyptian—precepts almost invariably accompanied by the pathetic reminiscence, "for you were strangers in the land of Egypt," "you know the soul of the stranger." It was the same spirit, in obedience to which the gates of Solomon's Temple were opened to the stranger, who, though not of the people of Israel, wished to pray to the Lord in His sanctuary; which spoke in the ancient interpretation of the verse, "Cursed be he that misleadeth the blind on the road," paraphrased by the Targum Jerushalmi, "Cursed be he that leadeth a traveller astray, one who in his ignorance is as though he were blind;" which may be recognised in the Talmudic precept (Gittin 61a), "it is our duty to support the poor of the Gentiles as well as the poor of Israel, to relieve their sick as well as our own, to bury their dead as we do our own;" and which breathes through the beautiful conception, according to which the 70 bulls offered in the Temple on the Feast of Tabernacles were meant to propitiate the favour of God for "the 70 nations"—all the families of the human race (Succah 55b).

From all that has been said it will be evident to you that though the word "Anti-Semitism" is new—the product of the intelligence of our own century—the thing itself is very old. Making allowance for times and places, Judæophobia is much the same malady everywhere and in all ages. We cannot allow it to spread without taking our precautions and applying the best remedies known to us. But the mournful fact must, I think, be admitted that it is a disease that is not to be cured by argument. Although the great Jew-hater of Alexandria was convicted of falsehood, envy, malice, and all uncharitableness, it is not recorded that Apion was convinced by Josephus.

For let the Jew do what he will, he cannot appease the anti-Semite when the fit is on him. Nothing is more certain than that the most varied and even directly opposite lines of conduct will evoke his fury and his hatred. If the Jew keeps himself in the background, it is because he is the enemy of mankind; if he comes to the front it is because he likes to have a finger in every pie. If he sides with the populace in their wants and aspirations, he is a socialist; if he is on the side of established order, he is a flunkey. If he saves his money, he is a miser; if he spends it, he is a lover of vulgar display.

There is a grim story in Midrash Echah (part 3) to the following effect: A Jew once passed Hadrian in the street and saluted him. Who are you? said the Emperor. A Jew, replied the other. What, a Jew, and you dare to salute Hadrian in the open street! Off with his head! Another son of the down-trodden tribe came that way, saw what was done to his fellow, and thought it wise to slip past the Emperor without saluting him. Who are you? again asked Hadrian. A Jew, he tremblingly answered. And you dare to pass the Emperor in the public street without saluting him! Off with his head! His counsellors were perplexed. "We cannot understand the principle upon which your Majesty is acting. He who salutes is put to death, and he who does not shares the same fate." "Silence," said the Emperor; "who will venture to teach me how I am to rid myself of those whom I hate?" There is probably a bit of hidden polemic under this apologue. How admirably it hits off that unreasonable and unreasoning hatred of which anti-Semitism is the hideous expression!

And therefore, although we need not shun a conflict which is sometimes forced upon us—although when the honour and the happiness of our nation are at stake we dare not fold our hands and help to devour our own flesh, yet there remains another and a higher course open to us, which ought to be pursued with steadfast, single-minded purpose, and which in the end will alone decide the victory. We may not be able to fight down all calumnies, or to write them down, or to talk them down; we must live them down. "He whose life lightens, his words thunder." We must prove that Judaism is no effete system, no petrified relic of a by-gone age, but a living organism, lacking in not a single symptom of health and growth. Our answer to those who would lower us to the dust, is to raise higher and ever higher our own ideal of life and conduct. As to the result, there is no room for misgiving. "When a man's ways please the Lord, He maketh even his enemies to be at peace with him."

ANTI-JEWISH RIOTS AT ODESSA AND SEBASTOPOL.

News travels so tardily from Russia that it is only now we hear of excesses against the Jews having taken place at Odessa on the 26th ult., and at Sebastopol on Easter day.

On the evening of the 26th April, the audience at the Russian Theatre in Odessa were apprised that something unusual was going on in the city. Everyone left the theatre, the Governor and several officials included, and on passing through the streets it was seen that at every police station were displayed two lanterns showing red lights, a sign that disturbances had begun and that the military had been called out. The principal parts of the city were occupied by troops, who were concentrated in the squares, whence patrols, mounted and on foot, perambulated the neighbouring streets. As there were no signs of riots, the police were on all sides questioned as to the reason for these extraordinary precautions. "Go home," was the stereotyped reply, "for excesses against the Jews have commenced in the suburbs, and they may at any moment spread through the city."

As a matter of fact a band of so-called "Bossa Kommanda" (barefooted persons) five to six hundred strong, had assembled on the Kulikowo Field, in the neighbourhood of the Railway Station, and had commenced an attack upon the Jews. When the rioters were driven away by Mounted Cossacks, they rushed with loud hurrahs and yells into adjacent streets, and plundered on their way a large number of tobacco shops (all other shops were closed at that hour), besides breaking an immense quantity of windows. But as the rioters were pursued by the Cossacks, who rode into their midst, they rapidly dispersed and only here and there was the work of destruction continued by solitary bands, who smashed the doors and windows of humble dwellings. The prompt arrival of the troops prevented them from committing acts of plunder. No lives were lost; but two Jews were very severely injured, and the Chief of Police, Major Bonin, and another police official received even still more dangerous injuries, through being stoned by the mob. Twelve of the rioters have been sentenced to imprisonment for terms varying from one to three months.

The disturbances at Sebastopol had their origin in an outcry, for which there was no foundation, that the Jews had murdered a Christian. In this town, likewise, serious results were averted through the energetic attitude of the military, who although they could not prevent the outbreak, which took a similar form to that at Odessa, succeeded in putting a stop to the riots by charging the mob with bayonets. Many of the disturbers of the peace were wounded.

The Archbishop of Cherson, in whose diocese Odessa is situated, has published a strong protest against the anti-Jewish riots in that city. The prelate exhorts his fellow-Christians to live in amity with the Jews. In the Judenhetze he perceives the effect of the anti-Christian teachings and ideas which, coming from the West, have penetrated into Russia, and which in Western Europe were likewise the direct promoters of anti-Semitism. Through these ideas the faith also has been shattered of the Orthodox Christians who were formerly on the best of terms with their Jewish fellow-citizens, and no one now thinks of observing the precept: Love thy neighbour as thyself.

AUSTRIA-HUNGARY.

Considerable sensation has been caused in Vienna by an exhibition of pictures by the young Italian artist, Signor Gelli. This gentleman, who is at present in the Austrian capital, was lately invited by the Emperor to paint his portrait. At one of the sittings the conversation between his Imperial Majesty and Signor Gelli turned upon anti-Semitism, the latter remarking that in Italy it was quite unknown. "This is as it should be," replied the Emperor; "I am indeed heartily ashamed that it should have penetrated into Austria."

A meeting of the liberal governing party was lately held in Pesth to discuss Istoczy's (the notorious anti-Semite) plan for a Bourse Tax. The meeting was attended by the Prime Minister, Herr Tisza, who declared that the personality of Istoczy as well as his motives amply showed that he was guided not by financial reasons, but by religious hatred and by anti-Jewish prejudices. It was natural, therefore, that Parliament could not discuss the plan from such a standpoint.

In a recent issue we commented on the unwillingness of some house owners at summer resorts in the neighbourhood of Vienna to receive Jews as tenants. Some of these individuals have, however, over-reached themselves. At Gitsing an association was formed with the object of refusing to let houses to Jews during the summer. This Association caused a broadsheet to be printed and circulated. The Procureur-General has now commenced proceedings against the head of the Association and the publisher of the sheet for inciting one section of the population against the other.

The Emperor of Austria has elevated two Hungarian Jews at Fünfkirchen, Herrn Joachim Schapringer and Adolph Engel, to the ranks of the nobility.

A gratifying demonstration of goodwill between Jews and Christians has taken place at the Hungarian town of Latrani. On the death of one of the leading members of the Jewish congregation, a funeral service was held in the synagogue, and after a sermon by the Rabbi, an oration was delivered by a priest. Hundreds of Christians, officials, private persons, and priests afterwards followed the remains to the Jewish Cemetery. The incident is the more noteworthy since the town forms part of a parliamentary division which has sent a notorious anti-Semite to the Chamber in Buda-Pesth.

The fires in Galicia have not yet come to an end. One of the latest occurred at Kruzience, where thirty houses were burnt. Among them were the synagogue and Jewish school.

Dr. Pauler, Hungarian Minister of Justice, is dead. During the famous Tisza-Eszlar case, the Minister obtained considerable notoriety through his pronounced anti-Jewish sympathies.

FREEMASONRY.—At the inauguration of a new Lodge at Melbourne (the "Lord Carrington") Bro. P. Blashki was chosen the first Master, and Bro. E. S. Raphael, J.W. At the inaugural banquet reference was made to the popularity in the craft of Bro. Blashki. Although a foreigner, he has gained high honours by being appointed a District Grand Warden, and has also on five occasions been appointed Special Deputy District Grand Master, to open and inaugurate new lodges.—On the 6th, at the "Creation" Lodge, Shepherd's Bush, Bro. M. Spiegel, P.M., gave an interesting lecture on the Origin of Freemasonry.

THE LIVERPOOL EXHIBITION.—Mr. J. Sebag Montefiore having been asked by the Committee of the Liverpool Exhibition to lend to them the travelling carriage of the late Sir Moses Montefiore, he has sent it to Liverpool. This carriage was used by Sir Moses Montefiore in many of his continental journeys. It was built after the model of the carriage of Napoleon and it has attracted much attention.—The whole of the contracts for the decoration of the route traversed by Her Majesty on her progress through the city were entrusted to Mr. William Harris, 106, Duke Street. The excellent and artistic manner in which the work was carried out was generally admired and was highly commended by the local press.

The well-known Wilna Edition of 1883 of the Ain Jacob has been re-bound and re-issued with the above title, the new heading being justified by the addition of a commentary on Beracoth consisting of twelve pages by Mr. Naphtali Levy. The original edition contains the commentaries of some of the greatest Talmudists, but these are ignored on the cover of the present re-issue—עם קרש נפתרי being supposed to have all sufficient attraction. It would have saved Mr. Levy from much sarcasm if he had published his modest commentary on Beracoth separately and in a less ambitious form. We notice that some portions in the copy before us are added by the pen, having been excised by the censor. Unkind critics will regret the sparing hand with which this official has exercised his functions.

Mr. Levy's commentary is chiefly devoted to pointing out omissions and lapses of previous writers. His originality is unquestionable. Few will claim to have anticipated him in his solution of the momentous problem. "Why does the Mishna begin with the letter מ?" It would detract from the interest that will no doubt be excited in this problem to divulge the explanation. Mr. Levy assigns as the principal object of his "book" his desire to defend the Hagadoth and Talmudic legends. He has the happy knack of stripping a Midrash of its poetry and insisting on its being nothing but literal common-place. He professes that his object is to preserve the flower, and in order to fulfil his aim he knocks the flower off, and shows that there was nothing but a dry stick after all. The Talmudic legends are in no real danger except from such ill-advised friends. So far is the present generation from despising or cavilling at legends and Midrashim, that folk-lore has been raised into a Science. No legend is now laughed at; it is so much new fact for the Science. Here and there a Jew-hater may scoff and jeer; but nothing could show a more total want of sympathy with the contemporary spirit than to suppose with Mr. Levy that our Midrashim are likely to suffer from the neglect or contempt of any but those whose opinions are worthless.

MR. F. M. HALFORD ON FLY FISHING.

Floating Flies and how to dress them, &c., by FREDERIC M. HALFORD. (Sampson Low & Co.).

To many of our readers it will be surprising to learn that Jews are given to sport in any form, but in this important part of English life there are not a few Jews who have already acquired leading positions. Lord Rothschild is a popular Master of Hounds, his brother, Mr. Leopold de Rothschild, is an influential member of the Jockey Club and one of the most respected members of the Turf; Mr. Elim d'Avigdor (under his well-known nom de plume of "Wanderer"), is a writer of the first rank on Sport; and now, we have Mr. Frederic M. Halford, an ex-Treasurer of the United Synagogue and one of the founders of the New West End Synagogue, writing a recondite work on Fly Fishing. Readers of the Jewish Chronicle will not expect us to give a critical review of this work. It teems with technicalities of the gentle craft. The author is well known as an enthusiastic disciple of Isaak Walton, and for years he has shared with Mr. Samuel Montagu, M.P., the rapture of a quiet retreat in Hampshire where the experiences discussed in the handsome volume before us were gained and practically tested.

PASTORAL TOUR OF THE DELEGATE CHIEF RABBI.—The Rev. Dr. H. Adler will leave town at the beginning of next week on a pastoral tour in the North. He will visit the following congregations: Newcastle-on-Tyne, Edinburgh, Glasgow, North Shields, Sunderland, West Hartlepool, and Hull.

BAYSWATER JEWISH SCHOOLS.—The Annual Meeting (adjourned from the 10th of March when the absence of a quorum prevented the business from being proceeded with), was held on Wednesday at the Schools, St. James's Terrace, Harrow Road. Mr. J. Bergtheil, President, in the Chair. The report and balance sheet (an abstract of which appeared in our issue of March 12), after some observations by the Rev. Dr. H. Adler and others, were adopted. The Honorary Officers were re-elected, viz.: President, Mr. J. Bergtheil; Vice-Presidents, Messrs. H. L. Cohen and M. Jaffé; Hon. Secretary, Rev. R. Harris. The retiring members of the Gentlemen's Committee and Ladies' Committee were likewise re-elected. Votes of thanks were passed to Mr. B. S. Marks, a member of the Committee, for his gratuitous services in teaching drawing to the children: Dr. L. Oppenheim, Honorary Medical Officer; Mr. Lewis Emanuel, Honorary Solicitor; the Honorary Secretary; and Mrs. H. Adler, Honorary Secretary of the Ladies' Committee. The annual examination of the pupils (of whom there are at present 169 on the books) by the Government Inspector will be held on the 1st of July.

JEWS' COLLEGE LITERARY SOCIETY.—On Sunday next the following papers will be read:—(1) חובות הלבבות, by Rev. M. Hyamson, B.A. of Swansea; (2) "A Pilgrimage to Jerusalem," by Mr. E. Cohen, of Jews' College (native of Jerusalem). Mr. Henry Franklin will preside.

STEPNEY JEWISH SCHOOLS.—The Rev. R. Harris, who was assisted by the Rev. D. Fay, examined the pupils of these schools during the past week in Hebrew and Religion. The children passed a very satisfactory examination.

MR. J. KARET, of the Settles Street Board School, has been appointed Assistant Master at the Borough Jewish Schools.

GOLDEN WEDDING.—Herr A. Ricardo Rocamora, who has filled for many years and still occupies the post of Shamass of the Portuguese Jewish Community of Hamburg, celebrates his "Golden Wedding" on Sunday next. DUBLIN.—At a meeting held on Sunday last, Mr. John D. Rosenthal, D.D., was unanimously elected representative of the Dublin Hebrew congregation at the Board of Deputies.

MURDER OF A JEWISH FAMILY.—Another of those frequently recurring murders of entire Jewish families is reported from Russia. The victims in the present instance were an innkeeper, his wife, and two grand children. The murderers were arrested at Saztlow, and confessed that the crime had been committed for the purpose of plunder but all they could find in money was four roubles.—At Balta, a number of men forced their way into the house of a Jew, and pelted with stones the sleeping family. One of the inmates, an old man, was killed. The murderers have been taken into custody.

Extract from the report (enclosed in the prospectus) of Messrs. W. A Minimum Dividend of 7½ per cent. per annum for Three Years is guaranteed by the Vendor, payable half-yearly.

PROSPECTUS.

This Company is formed to purchase, as a going concern, the business known as the Empress Bakery, situated at 54, Whitechapel High Street, together with the valuable patent, No. 4,419, for bakers' ovens. The business is in full working order; thus no interruption will be caused, and the shareholders may look for an immediate return on the capital invested in the undertaking, and beyond the 7½ per cent. per annum guaranteed for three years by the vendor.

STEIN'S BAKERY and PATENT OVEN COMPANY (Limited).—The business has been carried on by Mr. Stein for 15 years, and has grown to such an extent that he has been compelled by increase of demand, and the necessity for further working capital for the extension of the business, to dispose of his interest. Mr. Stein has studied to supply the public and the leading establishments in London with a pure bread, and that its quality is highly appreciated is guaranteed by the fact that it is now supplied to upwards of 120 of the largest hotels and restaurants in London, some of the principal names now on the books being set forth in the accompanying report. The trade at present exceeds 100 sacks of flour a week, and such is the increasing demand for the bread, that it is intended forthwith to construct additional ovens of "Stein's" Patent at the premises in Whitechapel, and so materially increase the present production.

Messrs. W. Williams and Co., Chartered Accountants, have carefully examined Mr. Stein's accounts, and a copy of their report is enclosed with the prospectus.

The construction of Stein's Patent Oven will comply with the Acts of Parliament; its specialities are economy and cleanliness, and, being smokeless, it has been approved by the Government Inspector, and is constructed at such a price as will enable the trade generally to adopt its use.

The following is an extract from the "Bakers' Record" of the 27th June last:

"On Friday, June 12, several hundred gentlemen inspected the ovens at the Empress Bakery, which gave great satisfaction.

"After the inspection, at a luncheon at the 'Three Nuns Hotel,' when Mr. Samuel Montagu, M.P., presided, with Mr. Deputy East as Vice-Chairman, the following report by Mr. Isidor Spielman, C.E., on the patent oven, was read, which will satisfy the trade generally of the great value of the patent, and the large profit that will be derived from royalties thereon:

"'Mr. Stein's oven shows much ingenuity, and possesses many important advantages. In the first place, it is not so very much more costly to build than the ordinary oven, but, apart from this, its economy in working is so marked that the matter of prime cost as compared with others need not be considered. The cost of working Mr. Stein's oven is stated to be about 7d. per day, taking coke at 13s. per chaldron. The next feature is the simplicity of handling it, and it might quite well be left to the charge of a boy. All that is necessary is to fire the two furnace openings with a few pounds of coke, and watch the pyrometer, or heat-indicator, which shows at a glance the amount of heat within the oven. The heat is regulated by the opening or closing of dampers conveniently placed, and the speed of firing can be assisted by a jet of steam led into the chimney. Above the oven a tank is fixed, so that hot water is readily obtainable for domestic purposes; thus all the available amount of heat is turned to the best account. It is in details such as these that Mr. Stein has shown such good judgment, but the construction and plan of the oven generally is such as to lead to exceedingly economical results in its working. The interior of the oven is lined with tiles, and it is as clean as an oven can possibly be. Bread made under such conditions must be both cleaner and more carefully baked, and from the fact of this oven being smokeless, or practically so, it should not fail to recommend itself to the Superintendents of Health and Inspectors of Nuisances, as well as to Mr. Stein's customers and the public generally.'"

STEIN'S BAKERY and PATENT OVEN COMPANY (Limited).—Several of these ovens have been constructed in different parts of London, upon which royalties have been paid, and are giving great satisfaction. Mr. D. K. Clark, M. Inst. C.E., and Testing Engineer of the National Smoke Abatement Institution, has recently tested Stein's Patent Ovens, and copy of his report may be seen at the Company's offices.

The Directors are glad to announce that they have secured the services of Mr. Stein as Managing Director, and his confidence in the success of the concern is shown by his taking £12,500 shares in lieu of cash, and his undertaking not to receive any remuneration for his services until a dividend of 7½ per cent. per annum be paid to the shareholders. Mr. Stein has also entered into an agreement not to engage in any trade of a similar character to that carried on by the Company.

It is proposed to further extend the business by opening branch shops in various districts, especially in the West End of London, where there is a constant demand for "Stein's Bread."

No promotion-money will be paid by the Company, the actual cost of registration, printing, stationery, and advertising, and the incidental legal expenses of preparing the necessary documents in connection therewith, being the only expenses which the Company will incur.

The contract upon which the Company acquire the business is one dated March 12th, 1886, and made between Wilhelm Stein, the vendor, of the one part, and Robert Sumner, as Trustee for the Company, of the other part, whereby the vendor agrees to assign the whole of his interest in the goodwill, plant, and effects, and the leases and agreements, together with the English Patent granted to the said vendor for improvements in bakers' ovens, and all improvements which may be made therein or thereto, for the sum of £25,000, payable as to £12,500 in cash, and as to £12,500 in fully-paid shares.

The Directors are not aware of any other contract imposing liability on the Company, but, to avoid misunderstanding, applicants for shares will be deemed to have waived the benefit of the 38th Section of the Companies Act, 1867.

A copy of the Memorandum and Articles of Association can be inspected at the offices of the Company.

Application will be made in due course to the Committee of the Stock Exchange for a settlement and quotation of the shares.

Prospectuses and Forms of Application can be obtained from the Bankers, Brokers, and Solicitor, or at the offices of the Company, 7, Queen Victoria Street, E.C.

Application for shares should be made on the form accompanying the prospectus, and sent, with the deposit of 5s. per share, to the Company's Bankers. Should no allotment be made, the amount paid on application will be returned in full, and where a larger number of shares is applied for than that allotted, the surplus deposit will be carried to the credit of the amount due on allotment.

May 13, 1886.
